WORK EXPERIENCE

Ox Bodies – Engineering Intern, May 2026 – Present

- Conducted a Statistical Process Control (SPC) study on the assembly line and determined stop 1 was statistically out of control, producing parts with 18% variance.
- Designed and built a wiring harness display board, used to demonstrate installation procedures to 30+ installation workers. Also used to represent our new control tower features to customers.
- Collected dimensional measurements from 8+ body components, to assess machine capabilities and identify defects, then collaborated with a team of 5 engineers to correct the processes.
- Worked directly with both the General Manager and Plant Manager to provide an alternative point of view on plant processes, and business logistics. Led to potential change in work schedule.
